Does the giraffe have a voice?

Yes, giraffes do have voices. But they do not use them very much. Their voices can be very soft. It can be hard to hear them. Sometimes giraffes will make a low moo sound. Then they sound like cows. They moo when they take care of their babies. When they get scared they may snort. Some people have heard them grunt. Others have heard them whimper or bleat. But many people do not hear them at all.

Giraffes do not often use their voices to talk to each other, either. This is because their voice boxes are not very strong.
